DANGER AHEAD.

Ashland business men have organized to push the completion of the Mayo trail, up the Big Sandy, to the exclusion of other road projects. This will endanger the completion of the road from Paris to Paintsville through Morgan county.

The Highway Commission is favorably disposed to the completion of the Paris-Paintsville highway, and only the gap between West Liberty and Salyersville, or rather the gap between West Liberty and the Magoffin county line, is unprovided for.

With the present condition of business and the new methods of business, good roads are necessary, and it requires money to build them. We have arranged for the completion of the road from Index to the Menefee county line, but not for the gap between this place and the Magoffin county line.

With the fight on for the withdrawal of the funds for this road it is necessary for the Highway Commission to complete the whole road. The Commission is asking Morgan county for $35,000.00 to enable it to complete the whole project between Paris and Paintsville, via Mt. Sterling, Frenchburg, West Liberty and Salyersville. We ought to do this. Even little Menefee voted $67,000.00 for bonds and she has less wealth than either of our Magisterial districts. But her people see that without roads she must perish and they have come to the scratch like good business men.

Good roads are as necessary now as food and clothing. They are necessary if the farmer and business men succeed in living, and the longer we wait the further behind and the poorer we get.

It is utterly folly to delay the matter of building good roads.

E

A FIFTY MILLION BOND ISSUE.

There is a bill before the General Assembly to submit to the people of the State at next November election the proposition of a bond issue for good road purposes of fifty millions of dollars. The plan is to let them be issued in blocks of ten millions at a time, five years apart, and all to be thirty year bonds.

There is little doubt of the Legislature submitting this question to the people, and there is hardly a doubt but that the people will vote the bonds. The question of the roads has become an acute one with the people. Hard surfaced roads are now just as much of a necessity to a community as the plow is to the farmer, or the yard stick to the merchant. The cost of transportation over bad roads now makes it impossible for the farmer to market his produce, or the merchant to sell at a reasonable figure.

There are many who will oppose a bond issue. Men who will not see that it is the only hope for the country. There will be many who will argue that it will increase taxes when it will not, but fortunately for the prosperity of the State that class of citizens is growing smaller. The majority have seen that good roads are an absolute necessity and who have also realized that good roads cost money—much money. And they have sensed the truth that it is worse than foolishness to procrastinate in the matter. They want good roads and want them now, and they are willing to pay for them.

The bond issue will win at the polls this fall.

What meaneth the silence of the Illiteracy Commission down at the Capital City this year? Why is it not there asking an appropriation to "clean up the adult illiterates?"

Two years ago the Courier was largely instrumental in spiking the guns of the said Illiteracy Commission in its attempted raid on the treasury, and anticipating that it would appear again this year asking alms for the blind, we had fortified ourselves with even more facts than we gave two years ago in combatting the hoax, but it seems that the Commission has taken its failure to heart and will not again subject itself to the light of truth again.

Let us hope so. The moonlight school was so transparent a fake that it required only the light to be turned on to defeat its claims. This year there are too many real needs for the expenditure of the State's money to listen to the pipe dreams of dreamers.

We are going to build roads now.

Judge Cochran said of the prohibition law: "Its enforcement can be hastened by an awakened public sentiment in that direction, but no law was ever enforced by sentiment alone. Enforcement of the prohibition law can be hastened by officers doing their duty in apprehending the law violators and the courts and jurors doing their duty in convicting and sentencing the guilty." That's a bit of wisdom that don't need any comment or amplification.

E

The dogged reformers are meddling in every act of the peaceful citizen's life. Representative T. O. Holder has introduced a bill in the General Assembly making it a fine of from $1,000 to $5,000 and imprisonment of from one to five years for failure to take a bath annually. What rights will they leave us, anyhow?

A few days ago we heard a wise guy remark that Henry Ford was crazy. We are not in a position to disprove the assertion, but if he is crazy we would be very glad to find out if the disease is contagious, and if so, where it may be contracted.

The calendar man in setting Easter Sunday on April 16 this year doubtless had as much difficulty in paving his Christmas bills in these times of "normalcy" as the rest of us. It is a case of "having a heart."

The Girl a Horse and a Dog

By FRANCIS LYNDE

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Under his grandfather's will, Stanford Broughton, society idler, finds his share of the estate, valued at something like $40,000, lies in a "safe repository," latitude and longitude described, and that in all it may be identified by the presence nearby of a brown-haired, blue-eyed girl, a placid horse, and a dog with a split face, half black and half white. Stanford at first regards the bequest as a joke, but after consideration turns out to find his legacy.

CHAPTER II.—On his way to Denver, the city nearest the meridian described in his grandfather's will, Stanford learns from a fellow traveler a story having to do with a flooded mine.

CHAPTER III.—Thinking things over, he begins to imagine there may be something in his grandfather's bequest worth while, his idea finally settling on the possibility of a mine, as a "safe repository." Reconsidering the narrative on the train, he ascertains that his fellow traveler was a mining engineer, Charles Bullerton. Bullerton renews his information, but from other sources. Broughton learns enough to make him proceed to Placerville in the next stage.

CHAPTER IV.—On the station platform at Placerville, just as the train pulls out, Stanford sees what appears to be the identical horse and dog described in his grandfather's will. Immediately he leaves the train at the next stop, Angels. There he finds the girl, Atronia, who originally Placerville, his destination. Unable to secure a conveyance at once to take him to Placerville, Broughton seizes a construction car and even peep, leaving the impression on the town marshal, Beasley, that he is a slighted suitor.

CHAPTER V.—Broughton, he abandons the car, which is wrecked, and escapes on foot. In the darkness, he is overtaken by a girl on horseback, and he does not know who she is. After he explains his presence, she invites him to her home, at the old Chinaberry mine, to meet her father.

CHAPTER VI.—Broughton's hosts are Hiram Twombly, caretaker of the mine, and his daughter Jeanie. Seeing the girl, Stanford is astounded he has located his property, but does not reveal his identity.

CHAPTER VII.—Next morning, with Hiram, he visits the mine. Hiram asks him to look over the machinery, and he does so, glad of any excuse to get out of the mine. In the afternoon, Jeanie, in whom he has become interested, and he engage in the first real work he has ever done.

CHAPTER VIII.—Broughton and Hiram get the pumps started, but are unable to make an impression on the water. Bullerton, apparently by no means a stranger, Twombly, visits the mine. He offers to drain it by consideration of Broughton's giving him a share of the mine. Broughton refuses. Then Bullerton offers to buy the mine outright for $20,000. It had not been Broughton's grandfather more than half a million. Stanford again refuses.

CHAPTER IX.—Jeanie cautions Broughton against selling the mine, under any circumstances, and, apparently in a spirit of mischief, allows him to kiss her. After a conversation with Hiram, Broughton decides he will stick to the property.

CHAPTER X.—Next day, during Stanford's temporary absence from the mine, an enemy, without doubt, Bullerton, wrecks the pumping machinery. Broughton decides to leave it out with him next day.

But there was no time to haggle about it, and the whining of another high-powered bullet on the iron roof over their heads speeded things up.

"Do your job," Daddy muttered; and I struck a match, snatched the tiny flame in my half-drawn hands until it got going good, and then, with a silent prayer that Daddy might not miss the hole, stuck the blaze to the frayed end of the powder string.

Coming all three together as it seemed to me, there were splittings like those of an angry cat, a puff of choking powder smoke, and the crack of the rifle. For just about three seconds nothing further happened; but at the fourth second or thereabouts—oh, boy! The cabin was stoutly and solidly built of logs, as I may have mentioned.

For, what with the previous night's broken rest, and the more or less exciting and strenuous day, I slept like a tired baby, and when I awoke the sun was shining in at the two high windows, holes at something more than an acute angle, and Daddy Hiram was making coffee and frying bacon and baking pan-bread over a chip fire built on a piece of boiler iron we had turned down for hearth purposes the previous evening.

The old angel took my reproachful abuse for his unselfishness quite good-naturedly, as he did most things, and made his report of the night's doings. Up to midnight there had been nothing stirring; but after that there had been noises on the blacksmith shop side, and indications that the jumpers were at work on something in the boiler shed. Since his lay beyond our field of vision, we couldn't see what was going on, nor could we apply the dynamite remedy.

Shortly after we had finished breakfast the work noises began again, but with the blanketing blacksmith shop in the way we couldn't see a thing and could only make wild guesses at what the rammers were up to. Along about the middle of the forenoon they fired up one or more of the boilers; a whiff of wind coming along the side of the mountain blew the smoke over so that some of it drifted into the shaft-house through the high windows. Still we were completely lost in the guessing wilderness.

It was a little after noon, while we were squinting on the door to eat another meal varnished up over the chip fire, that we found out the answer to all the guesses and learned what the mechanical noises of the night and forenoon had been leading up to. One of the left-overs from the working period of the mine was a good-sized steam force pump which, we took it, had once been installed on one of the lower mine levels and had been hoisted out of the shaft ahead of the advancing water flood and put under shelter in a corner of the boiler shed. As I was passing my tin cup for more of Daddy's excellent coffee the rattle and clink of a pump began to make itself heard, together with the coughing gurgling of the steam exhaust therefrom.

"That's that low-level pump!" I exclaimed. "They must have connected it up with the boiler!"

Whoosh! that was just as far as I got. In the middle midst of the word "boilers" a two-inch jet of muddy water came chugging up through one of the window openings to arch over and fall splash, all over us as we sat snugly under our dinner. Ever so slightly nudged the dinner, put out the fire, and set the coffee pot, and made directed rates of both of us in less time than it takes to tell it—much less.

So much for that. Of course, we ran and ducked and dodged, like the drowned rats I speak of hunting for a hole. But now Bullerton's devilish engineering ingenuity came into play. By some means as yet unknown to us, he had contrived a movable nozzle to his squirt-gun, and in another minute there wasn't a single dry spot left in that shaft-house. I venture to say that Daddy and I and the dog ran a full mile trying to get out of range of that devious nozzle-machine, but there wasn't a corner of the place that it couldn't, and didn't, reach.

During the night the second-level had laid a pipe line from the pump in the boiler shed straight up to our prison fortress; this with an upright extension on the business end of it. At the top of the sandpipe spout there was an elbow with a short joint of pipe screwed into it to point our way; and on the end of this nozzle there was a piece of rubber hose. Under the jerky impulses of the pump strokes this flexible extension of the nozzle flopped up and down and around and sideways, like the nose of a patient hewn sprinker; and there you are—or there we were.

"Gosh-to-Solomon!" Daddy spluttered, "we ain't on the water wagon—we're spunk inside of it! Are you rememberin', Stan, that they can top this gosh-dna thing up forever? All in the world they've got to do is to put a stick o' wood on the fire now and then! Say, son, they got us coddled and domin'; we can't eat, and we can't sleep no more whatever!"

"By heavens, I own those boilers, and if I could get a stick of dynamite under 'em, I'd fix the fellow that's firing 'em!" I spluttered; and then the bright idea was born. "Say, Daddy, we can stop it!" I yelled; and just then the water devil outside made another fiendish flop and got me squarely in the face.

In Another Minute There Wasn't a Single Dry Spot in the Shaft House.

But it didn't drown the bright idea.

CHAPTER XV.

High Explosives.

The idea was one which ought to have suggested itself much sooner. The steam supply pipe for driving the big centrifugals at the shaft-mouth came through the wall over our heads, and it was the sight of this pipe, stenciling even on the outside of its thick insulating jacket of asbestos under the wetting from the water jet, that had set me thinking.

A spinning twist of the engine throttle valve set our machinery in motion, and when I had thrown the pump clutch in, we crouched again in the least-wet corner to watch the index of the tell-tale steamgauge connected into the supply pipe.

We knew that the centrifugals were voracious steam-eaters; we had proved that when we were running them in the week-long test. I had a notion that maybe Bullerton had fired only one of the batteries of three boilers to run his shower-bath machine, and the result speedily confirmed this assumption. In a few minutes the steam pressure had dropped to a point at which it would no longer drive any of the pumps, either ours or the one outside, and the window cataract stopped. "This will be only a breathing space," I prophesied, getting up to squeeze some of the superfluous water out of my clothes. "Bullerton will do one of two things: fire the other two boilers, or disconnect this steam pipe of ours."

"Teekon so?" said Daddy. "You'll see in a minute or so." The attack began even while we were speaking, sundry hammerings and twistings that shook the pipe overhead proving that the besiegers were going to stop the leak by cutting us off from the boilers.

"Take your whirl at the inventions, this time, Daddy!" I urged. "When they get this supply pipe cut out, we'll be in for another ducking—and one that we can't stop!"

In the Flash of the Explosion We Had a Glimpse of Doors and Windows Caving In.

but in the flash of the real thing explosion we had a glimpse of doors and windows caving inward and a section of the split-shingle roof leaping toward the spall-strewn floor on high.

"Now, darn ye," was Daddy Hiram's morose comment, made with an eye to a prophetic, "now, darn ye, maybe you'll let folks sleep peaceable for a little spell!"

Of course, in the darkness, much thicker by the cloud of dust the explosion had kicked up, we couldn't tell what had become of the split-shingle roof, or whether or no we'd killed it or any of it. But who immediately result was perfectly self-satisfying. There were no more roof bombardments, and after we had rounded out lunch together for perhaps half an hour, Daddy sent me to the blankets for my forty whisks; did this and afterward played a low-down crib on me.

WHY DO THEY LIKE THIS MAN?

If it Because He Has the Life Energy that Red Blood Gives

He has a good eplo. He is and virile, and looks it. He is humored. He laughs easily. He is "full of life," which is a very other way of saying he is full of red blood. If you are weak and run-down and nervous, don't let your doctor have a poor appetite for your drug and buy a few bottles of Gude's Pepto-Mangan and take it for a few weeks at meal-time. See how it will build you up by giving you plenty of good blood. (Don't get around half sick and half well. Get some "pep" into you by taking Pepto-Mangan. Sold in both liquid and tablet form. — Advertisement.

WHITE OAK.

Richard Adkins was called to the bedside of his sister, Mrs. Henry Colvin, who is very ill with pneumonia. W. C. Nickell has returned from the hospital at Jackson and is much better.

Bruce May, of Hazel Green, was at this place last week. Vearl Allen is visiting relatives at West Liberty. Mrs. M. H. Lacy is on the sick list this week. Gardia Cottle has been visiting her sister, Mrs. W. H. Pratt. Mrs. D. B. Howard and Mrs. H. W. Vance passed through here enroute to West Liberty/Friday. Herbert, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Lacy, is very sick this week.

ROSEBOP.

(From another Correspondent.) J. W. Peifrey, of Florence, was visiting on Big Branch Saturday. Born, to the wife of Johnnie Mc. Guire, the 17th inst., a girl — Vivian.

Ernest and Kelly Elam have bought the Ernest Oney farm on Rock House. Leonard Salyer visited his sister, Mrs. Tilman Brown, at Yocum Falls, Saturday and Sunday. Verlie Allen, who has been visiting his sister, Mrs. Jeff Frazer, Middle-town, Ohio, came home last week. M. F. Little, of Caney, and his mother, Mrs. W. M. Little, returned. Lige Vance made a business trip to Caney this week. L. J. Webb, of Webbville, who is all smiles, was here calling on the merchants. John Skidmore and Bill Ewing, of Clay City, passed through here on their way to Falcon, where they will work in the oil fields. If you want to be popular — have a old. Everybody is having one now. — DIXIE.

SOUR STOMACH INDIGESTION

Theodor's Black-Draught Highly Recommended by a Tennessee Grocer for Troubles Resulting from Terpid Liver.

East Nashville, Tenn. — The efficacy of Theodor's Black-Draught, the genuine, herb, liver medicine, is vouched for by Mr. W. N. Parsons, a grocer of this city. "It is without doubt the best liver medicine, and I don't believe I could get along without it. I take it for sour stomach, headache, bad liver, indigestion, and all other troubles that are the result of a terpid liver. I have known and used it for years, and can and do highly recommend it to every one. I won't go to bed without it in the house. It will do all it claims to do. I can't say enough for it."

Many other men and women throughout the country have found Black-Draught just as Mr. Parsons describes — valuable in regulating the liver to its normal functions, and in cleansing the bowels of impurities. Theodor's Black-Draught liver medicine is the original and only genuine. Accept no imitations or substitutes. Always ask for Theodor's.
